Giants Tune Up for Big Series While Dividing Double Bill With Braves in Season's Final Games

Nehf, Scott and McQuillan Hold Boston Team Scoreless

Trio of McGraw Hurlers Display Encouraging Form in Closing Contest; McNamara, Former Fordham Star, Blanks Giants With 2 Hits in Opener

By W. B. Hanna

One show is over, next comes the finale. The New York-Boston contribution to the National League curtain fall, which took place at the Polo Grounds yesterday, was a 3 to 0 victory for the Braves, then a 3 to 0 victory for the Giants. Each team blanked the other, each made three runs, hence a day ideally satisfactory.

Red Sox Defeat New Haven

By the Phillies in

Farewell Game, 6-0

The Giant regulars played in the losing number, his colts accounted for the victory. The fine, smooth pitching of Tim McNamara, late of Fordham, nursery of the big leaguers, and now of Boston, was the distinct knock-out act of the afternoon

Tim of Fordham held the Giants, regular, full-fiedged world's series Giants, mind you, to two hits, and one of these was a scratch and much akin to error. It fell to Frank Snyder.

Meusel made the only clean New York hit. McNamara had the following equipment, and used it smartly to the sequipment, and used it smartly to the undoing of the Giants: a slow ball, the hest of control, a fast ball around the neck, thrown with a side arm and almost underhand motion, a curve which now broke down, and at other times broke literally, and he manipulated that mystifying melange with an aplomb and guile all Greek to the Giants.

Billy Southworth, who has been out of the game most of the season, was in this one with his bat and all of his hands. He laced a homer into the upper stand in the first inning with Kopf, who had singled, resting on first base. He sent a long sacrifice fly to Young in the fifth inning and brought in the other run. The nearest the Giants came to scoring was in the first inning, when Frisch, trying to register on Meusel's hit, was thrown out at the plate as he came in standing.

Johnson, a youngster, pitched creditably for the Giants, and in the second game Manager McGraw tuned up three world's series probabilities—Nehf, Scott and McQuillan—and all pitched in a manner encouraging for good work from them in the series. In the seventh inning Boeckel opened with a triple, but never tallied Me.

pitched in a manner encouraging for good work from them in the series. In the seventh inning Boeckel opened with a triple, but never tallied. McQuillan struck out Henry and Gallagher, passed Gowdy and struck out Yeargin. The three strike-out were all on a called third strike, showing that Mac was fooling 'em.

The Giants didn't do much with Yeargin, a big chap with a free overhand swing. Meusel's triple batted in Maguire in the first inning, and Highe's home run drove in two in the sixth. Higbie gave distinction to his recruitship by hitting the homer to right center and beating the relay with a long, desperate slide and the lash of ambition.

The Giants showed no batting Williams, cf. 61 2 2 10 lobuston, ss. 400 120 Williams, cf. 61 2 2 10 lobusto

The Giants showed no batting strength to alarm the Yankees, but the Giants in a valedictory game, in which nothing is at stake, and the Giants in a world's series are quite different matters; and the Giants, in splendid condition, to all appearances, are set and ready to fere forth to retain the prestige of their league, which they have no mean chance of doing.

McNamara is making a brilliant entry into National League circles. He shut out Brooklyn, defeated Cincinnati and shut out New York. He surprised Arthur Devlin, his discoverer and spon-sor, yesterday by the effulgence of his work.

Pennant Winning Yankees Back Home All Set for Big Series

By John Kieran As soon as yesterday's game with the Senators had drawn to its rather unsatisfactory conclusion the pennant-winning Yankees made all speed for the Union Station in Washington and boarded a flyer for this metropolis. They arrived here about the witching hour of midnight and scattered to their various domiciles under instructions from Miller Huggins to take at least forty winks before they turned out of bed this formula.

The loss of the game to the Griff-Records for the Week men did not bother the Huggins clan so much as the manner in which it was done, as Squire Jones had shown signs of forsaking the paths of iniquity lately and was looked upon as a possible star in the big series.
